

Short Stories

An Exhibit After Your Own Art

Kickstart your day with a trip down to GreenHill's latest exhibit, PRESENCE: A Figurative Art Survey ("Figurative" is academic speak for Modern art that retains references to the real world). Leading N.C. artists invite you to explore the human condition through their survey of sculpture, paintings, fiber art and works on paper. Immerse yourself in a space committed to making the mundane of everyday beautiful, such as the simple task of lacing up your shoes. A culmination of realistic and symbolic works contribute to a distinctly Carolinian feel sure to pull at your art-strings. The only thing better than the chance to explore the minds of talented artists through their work is the chance to do so for free! This exhibit can be easily accessed just inside the front doors of the Greensboro Cultural Center, and will be open for viewing July 23 through November 5. We're counting on you to Gogh! Info: greenhillnc.org.

Bruce Shores, Audrey Putting on Her Shoes, 1989, oil on canvas, 48 x 66 inches